

The Potters Beechworth Autumn 2009 Newsletter

Owned and operated by Judy and Ric Pierce, One Tree Hill Pottery

Beechworth has survived another summer fire season and things are still going well. Despite the global financial worries, potters will still to make pots. For a weekend away why not consider doing a workshop at our studio. Enjoy NE Victoria's hospitality and a creative experience with clay in the same weekend, can it get any better than that?

Also, don't forget that you can buy online from our web site. You can even get your purchase gift wrapped with a card and sent to a friend. (www.onetreehillpottery.com.au/Standard.htm)

Brenton Saxby has been working hard over summer at his Beechworth studio to produce wonderful ceramic pieces for our next exhibition.

Feature Autumn Exhibition

Brenton's recent ceramic forms explore topographical and aerial views of northeast Victoria. Using sculptural stoneware clays, Brenton constructs the pieces over large curved plaster moulds. Dry glazes, stains and oxides work with the clay surface rather than cover it. The strong textural and tactile feel combined with the organic shapes make the work visually exciting.
